Hackney in bloom

The garden in St Joseph's Hospice, Mare Street, won the best business premises category

By Gracia Douglas

THIS year's Hackney In

Bloom was the biggest and the best yet, with a record number of gardeners entering the Council-organised competition. The high standard of colourful entries once again proved the borough has much to be proud of. There was stiff competition in categories ranging from best front garden to best estate and pub.

OLYMPIC CITY

By Emma Britton

HISTORY will be made when the Olympic flag is handed to London at the closing ceremony of the Beijing Games on Sunday, 24 August.

And everyone in Hackney is invited to join in the celebrations as the borough welcomes the Games to the capital with free events in Hoxton Street and Shoreditch Park.

It marks the culmination of years of hard work to secure the Games and the moment when London officially becomes the host city for the 2012 Olympics and Paralympics.

Jules Pipe, Mayor of Hackney, said: "Hackney is at the heart of where the Games will happen in just four years' time, and we are making the most of this by working hard to secure the best possible benefits for residents.

"The bid was won on the strength of regenerating East London and we are determined Hackney will be a better place as a result.

"We have already secured better public transport links and are working with partners to ensure the media centres, built for the Games, are transformed into a new regional hub for the media and creative industries, with the potential to generate around 8,000 jobs. The centres will sit at the heart of a thriving new neighbourhood in Hackney Wick, improving an area badly in need of investment.

"The Council is working hard, but there is still a great deal to do in the run up to 2012 and beyond. We are seizing this golden opportunity."

There will be something for everyone during the Hackney Handover celebrations, which are happening during the annual Shoreditch Festival.

Hackney is one of five London boroughs to host the 2012 Games and a wealth of entertainment has been lined up to celebrate.

Message from the Mayor

Summer of pedals and medals

ON 8 August, the 2008 Olympic Games begin in Beijing. The Paralympics follow four weeks later.

I'd like to wish the best of luck to all the British team, but especially to Hackney athletes, triple jumper Phillips Idowu and Paralympic swimmer Dervis Konuralp.

When the Beijing Olympics finish on 24 August, the flag will be handed to London as we become the official host city for the 2012 Games.

There will be events across London to mark the occasion, and in Hackney we will be celebrating in our own way, with lots going on in and around Shoreditch Park. (See our four page pull-out programme inside)

These celebrations also mark the end of the Shoreditch Festival, an eight day series of events run by Shoreditch Trust and supported by the Council.

A highlight will be the first ever Tour de Hackney on 17 August which includes a ride around the borough's green spaces.

Hackney is a great place to be a cyclist – we have previously been named Best Bike Borough – and I hope this summer's events encourage more residents to get cycling and take part in the many sporting opportunities available across Hackney.

EVERYONE loves a trip to the cinema, but for a group of young people from a Hackney estate it was a once in a lifetime experience.

Members of the Fawcett Estate Youth Committee got to watch a short film they made on the big screen at the Rio Cinema in Dalston.

Their hard work and dedication was on show for all to see at the official

“ It was great to see the young people's work on the big screen. They showed great commitment ” premier of 'H-Town or Outtatown'.

The group, aged between 11 and 19, helped write, direct and produce the movie, which they also had acting parts in.

It tells a story of how young people work together to tackle fears and ignorance around teenage pregnancy.

It also touches on street culture and the way in which young people living in inner city areas fight the pressure to get involved in anti-social behaviour.

Described as 'hard hitting and gritty', the film was supported by Hackney Homes, the Council, charity Elevate and CityZEN.

Tania de St Croix, Elevate Youth Outreach Worker, said: "It was really great to see the young people's work on the big screen. I was very proud of how they showed great commitment by organising the event and making a speech in front of a number of other young people and professionals."

The committee is currently working on their latest venture, producing a documentary exploring the relationship between the police and young people.

On your marks: Linford Christie and Darren Campbell say go in the Hackney heats of Street Athletics on 28 July

By
Emma Britton

OLYMPIC fever is sweeping the borough with youngsters spurred on by British athletics stars of the past and present. Gold medal sprinters, Linford Christie and Darren Campbell, visited Hackney to encourage aspiring Olympians in a street athletics competition.

Winners of heats in Downs Park Road, E5, will now compete against youngsters from nine other London boroughs on 6 September.

Linford said: "We were hugely excited about returning to Hackney with Street Athletics to seek out the best raw talent the borough has to offer."

The top three boys and girls from each age group in London will go on to a national final in Manchester on 20 September.

Britain's current Olympic hope, Hackney triple jumper Phillips Idowu, was also the star attraction at the Crystal Palace Athletics Grand Prix on 25 July.

Three Hackney teenagers from the Excelsior Women's Basketball Team were lucky enough to interview him as part of a personal development project run by Leyton Orient Community Sports Programme (LOCSP).

Michelle Uyinnmwun, Eboni Ferguson and Nicole Swire, 19, had to fight their way through the media scrum to talk to their idol however.

Nicole said: "We felt a bit out of our league as we were the youngest people there, but our basketball skills came into play as we created space in between the media professionals fighting for the athletes' attention using the 'boxing out' technique."

"There was a media frenzy, but we managed to get his attention and got our interview."

"By the end of the night we were really overwhelmed as we had the chance to meet well known athletes face to face – it was a great experience."

NEWS IN BRIEF

No laughing matter

COMEDIAN Richard Blackwood came to Hackney to help raise awareness of the fight against knife and gun crime in London.

The TV presenter was the star attraction at a day that featured catwalk shows, dance displays and a play with an anti-violence message. The event on 16 July at the Hackney Road offices of A4e, a company that helps the unemployed into work, also raised funds for the NSPCC.

Water baby boom

THE summer holidays have seen nearly 400 Hackney youngsters improve their swimming skills.

Primary school aged pupils have taken advantage of the Top Up Swimming scheme, run by GLL, to improve their skills. The youngsters, who were all identified as being unable to swim by the Hackney School Sports Partnership, can now swim a minimum of five metres unaided. This is vital, when drowning is the third most common cause of accidental death in the UK's under 16s.

Pupils were awarded certificates and free family swims, in recognition of their achievements. Marnie Collins, swimming co-ordinator, said: "These young people have achieved so much in two months when you think that most of them were non swimmers. Being able to swim independently and safely is a life saving skill."

There are numerous swimming courses available throughout Hackney during the summer, for all ages and abilities, through the London Swim School. In addition, there's free swimming for under 18s on offer at five swimming pools in the borough, including London Fields Lido. ## The Olympics are coming

There will be a 1948 Street Party in Hoxton Street looking back to the last time the Games came to our capital.

As well as plenty of vintage stalls, visitors can enjoy the Windrush Dancehall sounds of Calypso, Mento, Jitterbug and Swing.

Or join Lily Farthing for a rousing knees-up and visit the outdoor bar and dance floor as East End Boys and West End Girls do their thing.

Staff from Hackney Museum will also be on hand to record residents' memories from 1948 and chat to others about what the 2012 Games mean to them.

In Shoreditch Park, you can watch live dance and entertainment on the main stage and take part in sports and cultural activities throughout the day.

Then watch history in the making as the Hackney Handover moment is broadcast live from Beijing on a big screen in the Park at 2.30pm.

Wet Sounds

Words and Pictures by
Stuart Aitken

‘We’ve never had a Saturday night like this before’, says a bemused lifeguard at the London Fields Lido.

Behind him a man dressed as a crocodile splashes around doing battle with two equally oddly attired women. Meanwhile, a chap called Le Couteau Jaune – dressed in a yellow kagool and matching shorts – coaxes strange sounds from equipment that would be at home on Tomorrow’s World, circa 1982.

All the while, the audience bobs up and down, listening to tunes only audible underwater. This is Wet Sounds, the UK’s first underwater music festival, the brainchild of sound engineer and Hackney resident Joel Cahen, supported by the Council’s Cultural Services Team. Having toured nine UK swimming baths, 19 July was the closing gala performance.

“Music sounds the same in water as it does in air, but it’s somehow a bit more present,” says Joel. “You feel the sound on your body. Part of the perception is through the bones.”

To create this effect, Joel has immersed the speakers in water. So while many of the 200-strong crowd sit around the pool, it is necessary to literally take the plunge to experience this music to its fullest. There is something magical about lying on your back on a sunny, summer evening, watching a cloud making its slow progress across the sky as Ernesto Tomasini improvises an eerie version of Oh I Do Like To Be Beside The Seaside. Piped through the water, the old music hall standard is strangely evocative.

Tonight isn’t all about relaxation however.

As the set by Andrew Liles comes to an end with a thundering wall of feedback – accompanied by high-pitched barking – all those in the water become immediately aware of the accuracy of Cahen’s comments about feeling the music through the bones.

Most people have come to see the headline act, stalwart of Hackney’s industrial music scene, Nurse With Wound. As rain clouds circle overhead, the trio perform a mesmeric set on a variety of curious instruments.

Cahen hopes to make this unusual festival an annual event. Let’s hope he succeeds.

Award-winning Adelaide Wharf in Queensbridge Road, E2, next to the Regent's Canal

Design for good life

By
Emma Britton

THREE examples of outstanding design in Hackney have been recognised with a national award.

The buildings were praised at the Housing Design Awards 2008 last month.

Adelaide Wharf in Queensbridge Road, E2, won acknowledgement for its 147 canal-side flats. Micawber Wharf at Micawber Street, N1, and Antony House at Pembury Place, E5, also featured in the awards' Exhibition of Excellence.

The awards celebrate the creation of places where “These awards serve to highlight the strong role of Hackney's Planning Service”

people want to live in healthier, greener and safer communities; and mark the best building design over the past year.

Judges considered a wide range of factors. These included the building's relationship with its surroundings and neighbourhood; the response to site constraints and opportunities; attention to safety, security and accessibility; and sustainability in construction.

Cllr Guy Nicholson, Cabinet Member for

Regeneration and the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games, said: “These three buildings show inspirational design and I'd like to congratulate everyone involved in their continuing success and for being recognised in these awards.”

“These awards also serve to highlight the strong role of Hackney's Planning Service in ensuring such high quality developments in our borough.”

Nominate your favourite

THE Council has started its own search for the best buildings and spaces in the borough, with the launch of the Hackney Design Awards 2008.

Nominations for buildings or designed spaces within Hackney that showcase high-quality contemporary design are open until 30 September.

Anyone can make a nomination, including architects who have completed a scheme, and residents or visitors who have spotted an outstanding building in Hackney.

Entries will be short-listed and judged by an independent panel. The final award ceremony will be held in January 2009.

Jules Pipe, Mayor of Hackney, said: “Inspirational design brings strong neighbourhoods with well thought out buildings and public spaces. We have some outstanding examples of good design and architecture in Hackney and I would encourage as many entries as possible.”

Previous winners: Nile Street, N1, designed by Munckenbeck & Marshall; and The Rooftop Nursery, 6 Ottaway St, E5, designed by WHAT _ architecture.

Mayor on the run

COUNCIL staff cut a dash while raising more than £2,500 for one of the Speaker of Hackney's charities.

Twenty-seven people including Mayor Jules Pipe took part in the five-kilometre Great City Run on 17 July, joining thousands of City workers to raise money for charity. Laburnum Boat Club, one of the Speaker, Cllr Ian Rathbone's chosen charities, is set to benefit from more than £2,500 raised. He said: “A big thank you to all who took part in the Great City Run and their sponsors for their efforts in raising this outstanding sum.”

Builders for 2012 media hub

THE Hackney Wick media centres for the 2012 Games will be built by two leading developers. A consortium of Carillion and Igloo will deliver the 1.3million square feet media hub that will house around 20,000 journalists during the Games, the Olympic Delivery Authority has announced. They will then transform the centres into quality mixed-use office and business space after 2012, providing a legacy of more than 8,000 jobs.

20,000 journalists will cover the 2012 Games from the media centres

Mayor of Hackney, Jules Pipe, said: “The Council's top priority from the 2012 Games is securing the best possible legacy for our residents. The media centres in Hackney Wick offer the opportunity to draw in media, digital and creative industries and create a new employment hub for East London, offering high quality jobs to local people.”

Bring your script to life

ASPIRING filmmakers are invited to apply for a course that could help them win a £1,500 bursary to develop their project. There are 15 places available on the New Pathways Tri-Borough Film Fund course, which is open to applicants from Hackney, Newham and Tower Hamlets.

It offers help with script development techniques, as well as routes to exhibition and distribution.

Applicants should have original stories to tell and, where possible, these should be based in the three boroughs. After the course, the 15 participants will be invited to pitch a script developed through the scheme to a panel of judges who will award six bursaries.

Applications close on 5 September. For further details and an application contact Stephanie Turnbull at Tower Hamlets Films Office: 020 7364 7920; or e-mail: filmsoffice@towerhamlets.gov.uk

THIS year's Hackney In Bloom competition was the biggest and the best yet, with a record number of colourful entries.

Green-fingered enthusiasts displayed great pride in gardens across the borough, with 79 entries in the fourth annual competition.

The contest, organised by the Council's Parks Service, aims to make Hackney brighter and raise environmental awareness.

Categories ranged from best educational to best front garden, with The Beehive in Shoreditch winning first prize for best pub for the third year.

Cllr Nargis Khan, Cabinet Member for Community Services, said: "I'm delighted to see this competition growing in size and importance each year.

"It is really encouraging to see so many people playing a part in looking after our environment.

"Congratulations to the winners and everyone who took part. The judges were really impressed with their hard work and dedication."

An awards ceremony will be held in October. First prize winners will go on to represent the borough in this year's London In Bloom contest, plus entries in three extra categories: Town Hall Square for best floral display; Clissold for parks and open spaces; and Clapton roundabout for an improvement award.

Changes of a lifetime

By
Emma Britton

TV presenter Tony Robinson is well-known for digging up the past in Channel 4's Time Team show.

But it's the future the Hackney-born actor is most interested in at the moment. And it's one year in particular that has got him going – 2012.

"Hackney has always struggled because it hasn't had the opportunities other boroughs have," says the much-loved character who played Baldrick in cult comedy Blackadder, and the Sheriff of Nottingham in hit children's show Maid Marion and Her Merry Men.

"That's why what's happening now is so exciting. I felt very despondent about my home borough for a long time. Various attempts have been made in my lifetime to make Hackney better for local people, but all of them have foundered. A lot of that was due to the poor transport network."

But now the borough is to get a 21st century link to the Tube network, via the East London Line extension, due to open in 2010. Tony said: "I think it will transform the borough. Hackney has so much more to offer the rest of London. Everything else will stem from the improved transport."

He spoke to Hackney Today during a flying visit to the Marshes while shooting a film about the borough to celebrate the Olympic Handover on 24 August – when London becomes the official host for the 2012 Games.

It is clear Tony is passionate about Hackney, which he describes as 'the real London'. His mum came from Dalston, and his dad lived in Mare Street. He was born at Homerton Hospital and moved to South Woodford when he was young.

But Tony was keen to come back as soon as he could, and moved into the old family home in Amhurst Road during his 20s, where he stayed for 15 years.

Hackney has so much more to offer the rest of London. Everything else will stem from improved transport

"Hackney is the good old East End," he said. "My dad learnt all the old Cockney songs at the Hackney Empire, and taught them to me."

"Three hundred years' of Robinsons have lived in Hackney and Tower Hamlets, and generations of my family are buried at Abney Park Cemetery."

Like so many people who live in Hackney, his favourite thing about the borough is its diversity.

"Because it has been diverse for so long," he said. "People are used to absorbing new people. Of course there's aggravation, but not nearly as much as in places where there isn't the psychology of absorption."

Despite having moved out of the borough some years ago, Tony still enjoys visiting, especially shopping at Ridley Road Market.

Back to the future and Tony's tip for 2012 is to capture it all. "We should all get our cameras out now," he added. "Because the 2012 Games are going to bring so many positive changes."

"Hackney will now get millions of pounds worth of new investment. I never thought I'd hear that in my lifetime."

A: Actually, they can be recycled. Telephone directories go to Raven Waste in Croydon, where they are shredded, and made into animal bedding and wadding. But because of the low grade paper, telephone directories cannot be reprocessed into news print for magazines and papers.

The newly planted beds on the Gascoyne Estate and (below) how it looked before the makeover

By Olaide Oyekanmi

LAND on Homerton's Gascoyne Estate has been transformed by a share of a £1million fund for community spaces near the Olympic Park site.

Residents can now enjoy more than 30 different types of trees, shrubs and flowers planted by Hackney Homes. The E9 estate is the first of six in the area to be improved by Hackney Homes' estate environment special projects team. It was responsible for every stage of the Gascoyne revamp, from planning to planting. One resident said: "This has completely transformed the area. It takes my breath away every time I walk past the new gardens."

The makeovers are among 24 community projects in the Wick and King's Park wards that were successful in bidding for a share of the Recreation and Environment Action Programme (REAP) fund, created as a result of land negotiations between the Council and London Development Agency.

Environment award winners

By Karyn Michael

HACKNEY youngsters have been honoured for their green credentials at the London Schools Environment Awards.

Clapton's Al-Falah Primary won a distinction and £2,000, while Tyssen Community School, N16, was highly commended and collected £1,000. Now in its fifth year, over 580 London schools entered the awards.

The theme for 2008 was learning how litter, graffiti and noise can have a negative impact on the environment.

Mayor of London, Boris Johnson, congratulated both schools. He said: "The enthusiasm shown by the young green champions in Hackney is really encouraging. Not only have they set a great example to all Londoners, young and old, they have, thanks to their parents and teachers, learnt at a young age the importance of caring for their environment."

Awards host, TV presenter Chris Packham, added: "It's encouraging to see the level of knowledge our school children are showing when it comes to improving aspects of London's environment."

The awards are sponsored by Thames Water, supported by EDF Energy, Capital Standards and the Department for Children, Schools and Families.

Save cash, save the world

By Olaide Oyekanmi

RESIDENTS are leading the way in a new pilot programme to create the greenest estate in the borough.

The Hackney Homes scheme will help people on the Whiston and Goldsmith estate reduce their carbon footprint and save money at the same time. It kicked off with a fun day on 12 July, where people learnt how energy saving products work and picked up helpful hints on recycling, transport, and solar heating.

Residents also received free, energy-saving light bulbs and an electricity monitor from npower, that show how much energy and money can be saved by not leaving appliances on standby, turning lights off and washing at lower temperatures. The Energy Savings Trust estimates households can save an average of £280 per year by using energy more efficiently. Resident Doreen Emerick, said: "We are proud to be the first estate to take on the challenge to be the greenest in Hackney. We see this as a win win for us. Not only will we save money, we will also do our bit to save the planet."

The scheme is supported by the Council, London Energy Efficiency, and npower.

Secondary school children fill the Round Chapel for the Senior Singing event on the third day of the three-week festival

Memories of music

Written by Rhasan Brunner, 13
Reporting Jamila Sami-Ludlam, 14, & Ola Adeniran, 12

THOUSANDS of children brought music to life at the 11th Hackney Music Festival.

It saw more than 4,000 children performing at the Round Chapel over three weeks in July.

There were 55 schools lined up to perform a wide mix of music from countries all over the world such as Africa, Brazil, China and Greece.

We interviewed one of the young singers before the concert started. The nine-year-old said: 'If we all sing together it will sound good. I feel really happy and excited.'

We asked if this festival would help her in anyway and she said: "It will make me more confident with singing." She had taken part in the concert before, and was inspired to take part again because she 'likes to sing the songs'.

We thought it was a marvellous festival to go to because the singers were really talented. It was good to see the different primary schools participating and such young, talented singers.

“It will make me more confident with singing. I like to sing the songs”

Rhasan also saw our primary school choir and met his old teacher. It made him happy to see them performing because it brought back memories of when he was in the choir.

We liked the songs because we recognised a lot of them. We hope we can go to the Hackney Music Festival next year.

The red carpet

By Nyasha McLean, 14

YOUNG people had their contributions to the local community recognised at the Hackney Youth Awards last month.

This annual event recognises not only achievements, but also shows the majority of young people in Hackney behave well and that it's only actually a minority committing crimes.

I won an award. It was very scary in the run-up to the presentation, because I could see my name and what section I would be given my award in the programme. As it got closer to being called, I got a bit nervous about having to walk up and receive my medal and certificate from somebody higher up in the community. Some people were lucky enough to get their awards from Radio One DJ Trevor Nelson.

The night was full of events, with acts performing in between the award presentations. It was a chance to show off the talent in Hackney, including a tribute song produced for the occasion.

The awards have been going for around nine years now and I feel very privileged to have won one.

Trevor Nelson, who presented some of the awards (above) Nyasha (below) fellow winner and former choirboy Rhasan (right)

I wasn't there alone on the night – a few of my friends hosted the night and one of them performed a song.

I want to let you know something else, guess what? I now know what it feels like to walk on the red carpet. Do you?

Special award winner

By Rhasan Brunner

I felt really happy about being nominated for the Hackney Youth Awards. I won a medal, a certificate and a trophy for being a Special Youth Award Winner.

I won because of my contribution to my community. It makes me happy to know that my volunteering skills are being appreciated. I've been involved in several volunteering organisations such as Contrast magazine and Headliners, where I've written a number of articles.

I've never won anything this important before so I think it's a great change for me. It's something I'll always treasure and remember.

Shoreditch Festival 2008, Sat 16 to Sun 24 August

THIS popular festival returns with two themes: sports and arts. Shoreditch Trust and partners present a wonderful programme of cultural and physical activities in and around Shoreditch Park. It kicks off with the Welcome to the World event in the park from 1-7pm on Sat 16 August. There will be music from all over the world including Brazilian funk, Cuban salsa, blues and even a beat boxing flute player. The Lift – an innovative portable arts venue – will be based in the park throughout the festival. It will be the venue for some quality events like Best of the Leicester Comedy Festival – On Tour, on 20 August at 8pm, and local young dancers Urban Essence: Angika and Ebonessence on 21 August at 6 and 7.30pm. These events are ticketed, but Shoreditch residents are entitled to a special rate. Hackney Handover will mark the historic day on 24 August when the borough officially welcomes the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games to London. This spectacular celebration will include a 1948 style street party in Hoxton Street art commissions, live music, and games which look forward to 2012. A day not to be missed. Starts at 1pm and all events are free. To download the festival programme visit: www.shoreditchfestival.org.uk.

REVIEW

By Kate Gibney

Shakespeare in Shoreditch, Hackney Empire Studio, 26 July

SURELY Shakespeare has never before been portrayed as so utterly lost as by Matt Wade. His Will wanders the mean 16th century streets of Shoreditch, narrating his past and future plans, dodging hookers and searching for a job in theatre. Producer Darrie Gardner, who also plays Elizabeth I and Anne Hathaway, and director Wendy Richardson promise a physical production that covers

Shakespeare's life – persecution, censorship, the plague, Elizabethan court – and offers some light relief. So in the space of an hour, they deliver a series of vignettes portraying the friendship between Will and fellow playwright Christopher Marlowe; their complicated relationship with the Earl of Southampton; and Will's entanglement with 'The Dark Lady' and his own family. Scenes of violence are rendered with grim relish: plague deaths, murders, swordfights and torture all accompanied by enthusiastic panting, groaning and writhing. If Will's wide-eyed narration doesn't float your boat, extracts from Shakespeare are thoughtfully chosen and performed with an energy and timing that suggest the company could carry off a full production of their own. You can catch the show at the Old Blue Last, pretty much on the site of Thomas Burbage's Curtain Theatre, where a young Will arrived looking for a job all those years ago.

PICKED from among 400 entries as the centrepiece of last year's Royal Court Young Writers' Festival, Bola Agbaje's first play Gone Too Far! won the 2008 Olivier Award for outstanding achievement. Now this comic, vibrant play about identity, history and culture is coming to the Hackney Empire. Yemi and Ikudayisi are brothers, but they've grown up in different worlds – Yemi on a South London estate, and Ikudayisi in Nigeria. But when Ikudayisi comes to stay, those two worlds overlap and Yemi is forced to re-think his place in the world. What starts as a simple shopping trip explodes into an exploration of a disunited nation where everyone wants to be an individual, but no one wants to stand out from the crowd. Gone Too Far! runs from 19 to 23 August at 7.30pm. Tickets £12.50 (+concs). Box office: 020 8985 2424; www.hackneyempire.co.uk

REVIEW

Moustachioed revellers; and the main stage

By Jane Young &
Kate Gibney

LOVEBOX London Weekender, Victoria Park, E3, July 19&20

NOW in its seventh year, Lovebox proved itself, yet again, to be the festival for discerning music fans – who hate camping! Spread over a sunny long weekend, party-goers had two bites of the musical cherry, without having to live in the psychedelic equivalent of a refugee camp for two days. The programme boasted a diverse collection of artists representing the various tribes of grime, world music, house, indie and Eighties revival. Saturday saw kids barely embryos in the 80s, embrace The Human League's future predicting electro; while elder statesmen of house, Groove Armada, got the crowd 'shaking that ass' with a slick, firework punctuated set; leaving international working class hero Manu Chao to whip them into a final freestyling festive frenzy. Sunday saw much to enjoy on the smaller stages as well as big name headline acts. Howling Bells played a Gothic-tinged set in front of an audience that doubled in size. Also well-received was Liam Finn, whose songcraft, allied with some fierce guitar playing, recalled both the Beatles and Hendrix, and provided a welcome counterpoint to Jack Penate's knock-kneed warbling on the main stage. Goldfrapp followed, with songs like 'Happiness' from their folksy, summer of love inspired latest album providing the perfect soundtrack to a chilled out afternoon in the park, before they picked up the pace with old hits like 'Ooh La La', and if that dippy hippy disco wasn't to your taste, excellent US indie stalwarts The Dandy Warhols enticed many away from the main stage. Afterwards these reviewers succumbed to the charms of the NYC Download tent, avoiding the Flaming Lips' headlining theatrics in favour of some disco music, false moustaches and tranny lip-synching to camp classics. The perfect end to a great lost weekend.

Welcome to our world

Skinner's Company's School for Girls see their film of Hackney on the big screen (above); Kingsmead Primary pupils learn to juggle at the celebration event (right)

By
Emma Britton

Budding young photographers and filmmakers from across Hackney have proudly exhibited their work.

They were mentored by professionals on a project to document their local area in the run up to the 2012

Olympic and Paralympic Games. Youngsters received expert tips on photography, film and music as part of a project to showcase Hackney's culture to the rest of the world.

Pupils from Skinner's Company's School for Girls, E5; Kingsmead Primary, E9; Berger Primary, E9; Rushmore Primary, E5; and Millfields Primary, E5, began work on the Welcoming the World project in February.

They were among more than 450 children from across the five Olympic host boroughs who contributed – as part of the London 2012 Education Programme.

One Millfields pupil said: "I loved learning to take photographs because sometimes when you want to tell someone something, it's not that easy, but by taking photographs you can show them and explain. I found out that people see

The finished work was unveiled at a celebration event on 4 July in Greenwich.

PE with predator

By Sylvia Arthur

OVER 700 pupils from Haggerston School for Girls got the opportunity to train with a Gladiator and compete in the fit4schools programme to raise money for their PE department.

Olympic medalist Du'aine Ladejo, otherwise known as Predator in the popular TV series, was on hand at the E2 secondary school to get the girls moving through a series of simple circuit exercises.

"We are thrilled to have a Gladiator come down and help raise money for a worthwhile cause," said staff member Kiersten Donohue.

"The fit4schools programme will help motivate our girls to keep them focused, entertained and inspired to raise £5 each towards new PE facilities."

The programme, founded by Gladiator Du'aine almost ten years ago, aims to get children involved with out-of-school activities and raise awareness of healthy eating.

"Actively participating in sports helps concentration, memory and learning," Du'aine said. "We're looking forward to making a difference in these children's lives and hope the sporting skills they learn on the programme will remain with them for life."

Ballroom to bathroom

A BALLROOM dancing display was just one way of celebrating the success of Hackney's youth – and the business people who support them.

Inspire! – Hackney's Education Business Partnership – hosted a reception in the City last month to mark its fourth year. In the past 12 months, the charity has sourced 2,154 work placements with more than 1,200 employers. It has also attracted over 400 business volunteers to support primary school children with numeracy and literacy, and delivered over 2,500 work-related sessions in secondary school and colleges.

Alhaji Jabbie, 16, a former pupil at Hackney Free & Parochial School, is a graduate of the Inspire! Ready 4 Work programme, which provides intensive support and workplace learning for students who need help and motivation.

He said: "I was in school and doing good, but after Year 8, it got boring. I did an extended work placement at Division 5 builders in Dalston, and in September I'm looking to study plumbing and have applied for apprenticeships."

Pupils from Lauriston, Jubilee and Gayhurst primary schools were a star attraction on the night, as they showed off their fleet-footed skills.

Inspire! director, David Blagbrough, said: "We hear a lot about problems and difficulties. But we have some very talented and remarkable young people. Volunteers enable them to fulfil their potential."

MATCH DAY PARKING SCHEME GOES LIVE

The new Match Day Parking Scheme is scheduled to go live on Saturday 16 August 2008 for the Arsenal v West Bromwich Albion fixture.

Hackney Parking Services are implementing the new scheme which will operate in Controlled Parking Zones G, G2 and Zone M (in roads west of Milton Grove).

On Saturday 16 August your CPZ will operate during the following times:

CPZ	Operational Hours
Zone G	12 noon to 4:30pm
Zone G2	7:00am to 6:00pm (covered by normal CPZ hours)
Zone M	8:30am to 4:30pm

The match day scheme will operate as an extension to your CPZ and is intended to prevent stadium visitors from parking in designated resident and business bays during Arsenal home fixtures.

To ensure that parking controls are seamless and there is no gap between the two types of restrictions, the Match Day

Scheme will begin when your normal CPZ hours end. This means that the Match Day

Scheme start time will differ for each zone.

If you live in the affected Controlled Parking Zone, you will need to display your parking permit for the entire duration of the Match Day Scheme operating hours. Your visitors will also need to display either visitor's vouchers or use the pay and display facilities provided for the full duration.

Boundary signs located on each road entering the Match Day Scheme area will show the date when the next Arsenal match will take place and when the scheme will operate. Signs in each parking bay will also display the match day operating times.

A new reception at Hackney's innovative Crossroads Centre, run by the City and Hackney Alcohol Service has been officially opened by Diane Abbott MP.

The reception is the first point of contact for people who have an alcohol-related problem. Centre Director, Patricia Salt, said: "It takes a lot of courage to seek help for a drink problem. So it's important that people's first impression is a good one, as they are more likely to return and engage in treatment if they feel welcomed and understood."

Hackney Alcohol Service was set up in 1994 and since then has successfully treated over 2,000 people.

Guests at the opening ceremony on 23 July were able to hear first-hand accounts from people who had accessed treatment using the centre.

Closer to health

PLANS to modernise GP surgeries across the borough will give patients access to a wider range of services, close to home.

The City and Hackney Primary Care Trust (CHPCT) has already started to redevelop and refurbish surgeries across Hackney. The programme will see some surgeries combined to ensure practices have the space and facilities to offer a greater range of services. Although this means the number of surgeries will decrease, there will be more GPs, nurses and other healthcare professionals in the borough, as practices expand and develop.

Each surgery will be linked to one of four new Primary Care Resource Centres – which received wide support during a public consultation in 2006 – due to be built by 2012. Once operational, over 98 per cent of residents will live within half a mile of a GP and all patients will be able to keep their existing doctor.

The extra services offered at the centres may also see patients experiencing shorter travelling times by avoiding hospital appointments.

On offer

- General Practice with convenient opening hours
- Diagnostic tests including ultrasound and audiology
- Maternity services (left)
- Community dental services
- Urgent care centres providing advice and treatment for all patients on a walk-in basis
- Primary mental health care including easier access to counselling and psychology
- A range of information and advice services including benefits advice

Beating the bugs

HOMERTON Hospital's record for controlling killer bugs is steadily improving, according to the latest figures.

With MRSA, it has seen a year-on-year reduction from 20 cases in 2005-06, to 17 in 2006-07, and nine last year.

Figures released by the Health Protection Agency also showed the hospital has seen a dramatic fall in the number of cases of Clostridium difficile. In 2006-07, 154 cases were reported. This year saw a total of 61.

Dr John Coakley, the hospital's Medical

“These results reflect the hard work of infection control team and staff”

MRSA (above) rates are falling at Homerton Hospital

Director, said: "We are very pleased with the ongoing improvement we are seeing at Homerton in combating hospital acquired infections.

"These improving results reflect the hard work and dedication of our infection control team and also all staff who remain ever vigilant."

CENTENARY
1875 - 1975

Life's work for peace

By Sally England

LAST month marked the 100th anniversary of the death of one of the 19th century's most tireless peace campaigners – long-serving Haggerston MP, Sir William Randal Cremer.

Born in Hampshire in 1828, he grew up in great poverty. While still a child, Cremer became a pitch-boy in the shipyards, working 12 hours a day, Monday to Saturday, for a wage of just two shillings (10p) a week.

But he still had the energy to attend lectures whenever he could. One of these was a talk on solving international disputes by peace rather than war, which became the great focus of Cremer's life.

After training as a carpenter and moving to London in 1858, Cremer was involved in the campaign for a nine-hour day for building trade workers. His employer sacked him and threatened to shoot Cremer if he found him on the premises.

As part of the dispute, 70,000 men were locked out by their employers, with Cremer travelling the country to give over 100 speeches in their support.

He became involved in trade unionism and workers' rights, was a founder member of both the Amalgamated Society of Carpenters and Joiners, and the International Working Men's Association. Cremer promoted peace and welfare through radical politics, but always opposed outright revolution.

From 1868 onwards, he attempted to gain a foothold in Parliament, but it wasn't until 1885 that he was elected MP for Haggerston. He was re-elected the following year and again in 1892, but narrowly defeated in 1895.

Cremer did not desert his Shoreditch constituents however, and returned to recover the seat in 1900, retaining it until his death.

His great achievement was the assembly of the Inter-Parliamentary Union at the House of Lords in 1906, with 22 countries pledging to settle their disputes through arbitration rather than war. Many praised Cremer's work to advance the cause of peace, but, sadly, only eight years passed before the outbreak of the First World War.

Cremer worked to the end of his life. He became ill after taking his daily bath at the House of Commons and going onto a balcony in bad weather. Pneumonia set in and although Cremer remained in high spirits, he was unable to regain his strength and died, aged 80, on 11 July, 1908.

His services to, and influence on, international politics were widely recognised. He received the Norwegian order of St Olaf in 1904, a knighthood in 1907 and – most prestigious of all – the Nobel Peace Prize in 1903.

Busts of Cremer are displayed in both the House of Commons and the Peace Palace in The Hague.

He is not forgotten in Hackney either, where he is commemorated in the names of Cremer Street and Randal Cremer Primary School in Ormsby Street, E2.

Safe as buses

All stories by
Gabriel Harriss

A BLITZ on anti social behaviour took place on Hackney's busy 38 bus route last month.

The six-day Operation Break-Up – which concentrated on Graham Road – saw transport police patrolling buses, looking for disruptive behaviour and offering reassurance to passengers. Inspectors also checked for fare evasion, and ensured young people were validating Zip cards.

The operation, which took place in the last week of school term, resulted in 25 penalty fares and 75 notices of potential prosecution.

Police also made two arrests. This high visibility policing was designed to reduce fear of crime, particularly among young people.

Chief Superintendent Joe Royle said: "Anti-social behaviour creates an intimidating atmosphere for passengers and increases fear of crime. This was about ensuring a safe travelling environment."

Steve Burton, from Transport for London, added: "Our most recent statistics show youth-related crime on buses has fallen by 19 per cent and we want all young people to feel safe and enjoy travelling."

Transport officers board a number 38 bus to reassure passengers and check any disruptive behaviour

Give your neglected bike a new lease of life by making it roadworthy

Keep pedalling through the summer

RESIDENTS who aren't ready to stop after the Tour de Hackney on 17 August can look forward to more two-wheeled treats.

Transport for London's Summer of Cycling campaign is urging people across the capital to dust off their bikes and use them more often.

It is estimated that 1.1 million Londoners have bikes, but just don't get round to riding them.

For those who need a little inspiration, the 2008 Tour of Britain kicks off in London on 7 September. Watch 96 professional riders line up for the first of eight gruelling legs that will take them all over the UK.

Two weeks later, Londoners of all ages and cycling abilities will be able to experience the joys of traffic-free cycling at the London Freewheel event on 21 September.

Driving diversity

A GROWING proportion of black and minority ethnic Londoners are putting their inner street map to the test.

Black and minority ethnic applicants (BME) for the famous Knowledge test for cabbies have increased to nearly one-in-three, according to the latest figures released by TfL's Public Carriage Office (PCO).

To drive one of London's iconic black cabs, applicants must prove they know the city like the back of their hand. In 2005, TfL launched a Put Yourself in the Driving Seat campaign to boost BME applications. The numbers applying has since grown by over 50 per cent.

TfL's Director of Taxi and Private Hire, Ed Thompson, added: "We have done, and are still doing, a huge amount of work to encourage taxi driver applications from London's many and diverse communities, and we are really pleased that people from all kinds of backgrounds are now coming through the world-famous Knowledge test."

Recipes straight from the ovens at Hoxton Apprentice

www.hoxtonapprentice.com

HERE is another in our series of recipes courtesy of the Hoxton Apprentice restaurant, chosen by one of their successful trainees. This week's recipe is presented by Charley, 21, from Lambeth. Charley is the only female member of the current apprentice group. She is working in a front of house position. She was referred to the programme by Fairbridge, an organisation that supports young people who are not in employment or education. Charley has experienced homelessness in the past, and had difficulties with education. She saw the Hoxton Apprentice programme as the best way to develop her practical skills in customer services and progress into employment. In the future Charley plans to open her own promotions and marketing company.

Strawberry plate with almond wafers

Preparation time
1 hour, 15 mins
Cooking time
10 mins

Ingredients

- 2 punnets of strawberries
- 1 small tub good quality strawberry ice cream
- 1½ oz icing sugar
- 2 oz unsalted butter
- 2½ oz caster sugar
- 2½ oz plain flour
- 1 oz flaked almonds
- 2 egg whites lightly beaten

Method

- Wash and cut green part from strawberries and cut in half – or quarter if large
- Refrigerate half and put the other half in blender with icing sugar. Blend until smooth and freeze for 2-3 hours

- Beat butter and sugar until pale, then fold in the flour and egg whites until thoroughly combined and set aside in the refrigerator for an hour. Bring to room temperature and preheat oven to 170C (350F)
- Line baking tray. Spread mixture into small even discs about 2 millimetres thick. Sprinkle with almonds and bake for 10 mins. Check to see if the tray needs to be turned as some ovens have hot spots. When wafers turn golden brown remove from oven and place on wire rack to cool
- Place cut strawberries on serving dish with ice cream. Remove the strawberry mixture from freezer. Scrape crushed strawberry ice mixture place onto dish with almond wafers and serve

The Hoxton Apprentice is a social enterprise set up to train unemployed Hackney people – both in the kitchen and front of house. Six month apprenticeships prepare people for the workplace and give them the chance to gain an NVQ in hospitality. Profits are returned to Training For Life, the charity which operates the restaurant, to deliver more training for unemployed people.

If you would like to offer an apprentice a job, or become an apprentice yourself, call Patrick Lyster-Todd on: 020 7749 2805. For more info, visit: www.hoxtonapprentice.com

Getting back to work

THE Council wants your opinions on a draft skills for employment strategy that sets out how residents can gain the right training to get back into work. The strategy also focuses on helping local people progress in employment and to aid them to participate fully in the social and economic life of the borough. For further details visit: www.teamhackney.org/skills\_for\_employment\_strategy.htm and see the Skills Strategy consultation. You can give your views by e-mailing: atiya.munir@hackney.gov.uk or call: 0208 356 3307.

would like your essential input.

About 25 per cent of the UK population currently smoke and it continues to be the main cause of preventable illness and premature death in England. There are around 87,000 deaths per year through smoking-related illnesses. City and Hackney Primary Care Trust and the Council want to hear from the local community to feed into a national consultation by the Department of Health.

Your views will help towards shaping England's long-term tobacco control strategy.

The consultation is open from 4 to 29 August and you can complete the online survey by visiting:

www.consultationfinder.com/hackney
For further details call: 020 7683 4040, or e-mail tomiwa.adeosun@chpct.nhs.uk

See the results

THE results of two consultations that residents contributed to are now available.

The creation of a zebra crossing in Cassland Road, South Hackney, was supported by 93 per cent of respondents.

However, feedback indicated the majority felt the crossing should be west of Meynell Road junction. In a second consultation, 68 per cent of residents were in favour of a one way system in Meynell Road. Residents now have the opportunity to comment on the revised plan.

Further information on the schemes can be found at: www.consultationfinder.com/hackney

The Mayor & Councillors

Councillors are elected by Hackney residents and serve for four years. The last borough elections were in May 2006.

Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee the Council and its services. They all hold advice surgeries where you can meet your local representative and ask them to take up issues that may be of concern.

Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, they can often point you in the right direction and tell you who you need to see.

Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – illustrated in the map opposite.

Please note: some councillors do not hold surgeries during the school summer holidays. Call the number below to check.

To check which councillor covers your area, or confirm surgery times, call: 020 8356 3373. More info: www.hackney.gov.uk/l-mayor-cabinet-councillors.htm
